“As the number of initial claims continues to decrease week over week, we hope to see more opportunities for South Carolina to return to stable employment and financial stability. As more individuals return to work, many have asked what they need to do to stop receiving unemployment benefits. The answer is simple; just stop certifying. The self-reported certification each week tells us if you’re still unemployed. Once you stop certifying for 14 days, your claim will become inactive. There’s no need to call us or notify us within the portal that you’ve returned to work or started a new position,” said Dan Ellzey, Executive Director, S.C. Department of Employment and Workforce.

“However, we know not everyone is in a position to immediately return to work. For those who are still looking for employment, our agency and the SC Works system offer resources to help you with this process,” Ellzey concluded.

Reemployment Resources

- SC Works Centers: Representatives in the SC Works centers can help you update your resume, offer interviewing tips and talk with individuals about hot jobs in the area and employers who are looking to fill positions right now. They can also refer you to occupational training, soft skills training and educational opportunities.
 - To contact a local SC Works Center, visit SCWorks.org and click “Find a Center.”
- Job Search Portal: The SC Works Online Services \(SCWOS\)) portal is South Carolina’s largest job search portal. Visit jobs.scworks.org.

Agency Responsiveness:

- From March 15, 2020 to June 2, 2020, the agency has paid more than $1.8 billion in a combination of South Carolina UI benefits, Pandemic Unemployment Assistance (for the self-employed and others), the Federal Pandemic Unemployment Compensation ($600 per week) program and the Pandemic Emergency Unemployment Compensation (extension of benefits for 13 weeks) program.
- The Chatbot feature on dew.sc.gov continues to improve thanks to your input.
- The agency’s SC DEW YouTube page is consistently updated with videos that walk individuals through the various claims processes, messages from leadership and explanations of the Federal CARES Act programs as well as the UI process.
- DEW social media platforms have updates, reminders and Q&A posts all developed in response to commonly asked questions and important need-to-know information.
- The average wait time for customers calling the TelClaim number has dropped to an hour or less for 90 percent of the calls.

About the S.C. Department of Employment and Workforce

The S.C. Department of Employment and Workforce is putting South Carolinians to work. The agency has four missions: (1) workforce development; (2) free job match employment services; (3) unemployment insurance; and (4) labor market information. All four missions contribute to workforce development. The agency is dedicated to advancing South Carolina through services and programs that meet the needs of our businesses, jobseekers and those looking to advance their careers.

*An initial claim is a claim filed by an unemployed individual after a separation from an employer. The claimant requests a determination of basic eligibility for the UI program. When an initial claim is filed with a state, certain programmatic activities take place and these result in activity counts including the count of initial claims. The count of U.S. initial claims for unemployment insurance is a leading economic indicator because it is an indication of emerging labor market conditions in the country. However, these are weekly administrative data which are difficult to seasonally adjust, making the series subject to some volatility.
